Paper 9687/02
Reading and Writing

Key messages

In order to do well in this examination, candidates should:

- demonstrate understanding of vocabulary used in context, rather than just the dictionary definition of the word
- write their answers to the comprehension questions using their own words as far as possible
- in Question 5(a), compare side-by-side the points made in each paragraph rather than analysing the paragraphs individually.

General comments

The overall standard of performance showed some improvement in comparison to the previous year. There was a marked improvement in the majority of candidates' ability to show their understanding and engagement with the texts. Many candidates attempted to answer Questions 3 and 4 using their own words as required.

There were also a number of relatively weak performances in all parts of the paper. Some candidates did not seem to be familiar with the requirements of the tasks. At the lower end of the range, candidates seemed to find many of the questions challenging.

In Questions 3, 4 and 5, the quality of language is assessed. In terms of candidates' written Hindi, the main areas for improvement included the use of tenses, verb forms and noun-adjective agreement.

Comments on specific questions

Question 1

In this exercise, candidates are expected to find in the passages synonyms of five given words. This tests their knowledge of vocabulary. The majority of candidates were able to answer at least three out of five questions successfully. Many candidates had some difficulty with the last word, काफी. A large number of candidates misread पर्यास as पर्यास and therefore did not score. This showed a lack of understanding as the two words have very different meanings.

Question 2

Here, candidates are asked to use given words/idioms/phrases in their own sentences. Many candidates struggled with this exercise, suggesting that feel for the language and its idioms and phrases was an area for improvement in many cases. Some candidates attempted to answer by copying out the sentences from the passage in the question paper.

Question 3

For Question 3, candidates are expected to show a detailed understanding of the printed passage by identifying the relevant information needed to answer the questions. Marks are also awarded for the quality of language. Candidates are expected to write the answers in their own words, although they are permitted to use vocabulary items from the passage.

In general, there was a marked improvement in performance in this exercise. A good number of candidates demonstrated a satisfactory understanding of the passage. In less successful responses, there was a tendency for candidates to omit to address parts of each question, and/or to rely on copying large chunks of information from the passage, which did not demonstrate comprehension.

Question 4

This exercise was often done well, although as in Question 3 a number of candidates omitted to answer the questions in full and/or attempted to answer the questions by reproducing large sections of the printed passage.

Most candidates performed well on Question 4(b). Many struggled to give satisfactory answers to Question 4(e), for which it was necessary to address the following: co-operation between husbands and wives in dealing with household chores, decision making and child care; the expectation of equal respect; making one's own choice of career. Quite a few candidates seemed to have difficulty understanding "समान सम्मान" and "भावी मार्ग चुनने का अधिकार".

Question 5

This question has two parts, and candidates are expected to give separate answers to each part. There were many cases of candidates providing just one combined response to (a) and (b) that did not meet the requirements of either part-question.

At the higher end of the range there were some very successful responses to Question 5(a) in which candidates summarised the main points of both texts in a structured way and made a good attempt to express points in their own words. In less strong performances, many candidates approached Question 5(a) by attempting to give a summary of some of the points in one passage only. Candidates are reminded that it is necessary to summarise and highlight the main points from both passages in answer to this question. In the weakest responses, candidates often resorted to copying out extracts from the passages at random without linking them together or adding any wording of their own.

Performance on Question 5(b) was often relatively weak. This question required candidates to give their personal opinion about women's roles in society, on the basis of the roles described in the two texts. In many cases candidates showed misunderstanding of the question and did not put forward their own ideas on the topic.

Essay

Key messages

In order to do well in this examination, candidates should:

- make a range of relevant points and develop them into an argument
- expand on points to an appropriate extent without deviation from the topic
- check written work thoroughly to avoid errors of spelling and grammar.

General comments

In general, candidates seemed well prepared for the examination. An overall improvement was seen in the quality of candidates' writing.

In the strongest performances, candidates showed the ability to develop their argument fully and used excellent examples to support their arguments. In less strong responses, candidates' use of factual information was not always appropriate or effective.

Some essays lacked a sense of focus or direction. There were also a number of essays that did not adhere closely to the question.

There were frequent problems with the accuracy of spelling.

Comments on specific questions

Question 1

This question asked candidates to discuss how far looking after the older generation is a responsibility of the state as compared with the younger generations. A number of candidates chose to attempt this question, and some interesting arguments were made. Most candidates underlined and provided many examples of how young children do not fulfil their responsibilities towards their elderly relatives. Stronger essays gave examples of state support and contrasted this with family support. There were also some weaker responses in which candidates only focused on negative examples and did not manage to give a balanced argument.

Question 2

For this question, candidates were asked to give their opinions on the following assertion: 'Free and simple village life is much better than city life despite the former's conveniences.' Several candidates provided relevant points in answer to this question. Many of the candidates supported the argument and gave examples of advantages available in villages. While highlighting the advantages of cities, some candidates also underlined the problems related to pollution, traffic and everyday travel. In a few essays, candidates reflected on the limitations of villages as well as cities, despite their overall argument erring towards suggesting that city life is a better option.

Question 3

Many candidates attempted this question. Candidates included several forms of entertainment as examples of possible hobbies for people who are victims of their busy working life. Pursuing a sports activity or cultivating an interest in travelling were frequently given as important examples of different life-enriching activities.

Question 4

This question asked candidates to discuss the following assertion: 'Waging war as an appropriate measure in the name of peace is based on confusing principles.' This question was attempted by very few candidates. The essays gave arguments in support of not waging a war. However, most of the essays did not highlight the arguments that countries have often used in order to legitimise their wartime actions.

Question 5

For this question, candidates were required to discuss the following assertion: 'Pollution is the biggest crisis for the existence of the earth.' This question was attempted by a large number of candidates, and performance was generally quite good. Most candidates covered three aspects of pollution affecting air, water and earth. All three of these types of pollution were elaborated on well by most candidates. Some candidates also discussed noise pollution which has been prevalent mainly in urban areas. In the strongest performances, candidates gave good examples and embellished their arguments using effective expressions.

Language

In many essays, there were frequent problems with the accuracy of grammar and spelling. For example, in many scripts, the word 'बढ़ना' ('to increase') was written as 'बड़ना' which means 'big'. Several candidates had difficulty writing plural nouns with postpositions in a sentence. Spelling errors were very frequently seen.

Commonly misspelt words included:

साहार-सहारा, क्षात्रों-छात्रों

मौजूद- मौजूद, सोर-शोर

तरहा-तरह, तरा- तरह

Texts

Key messages

In order to do well in this examination, candidates should:

- answer the required number of questions, in accordance with the instructions provided on the front cover of the examination paper
- plan their work carefully
- focus on the specific question asked rather than on re-telling the story.

General comments

A wide range of performance was seen. A number of candidates demonstrated a good understanding of the texts. There was an improvement in candidates' adherence to the rubric instructions: only a few candidates infringed the rubric by attempting to answer both parts (k) and (kh) of the same question.

Paying close attention to the wording of questions was an area for improvement. Many candidates tried to provide plot summaries instead of addressing the different sub-parts of their chosen questions. Some candidates seemed not to have understood their chosen questions in full.

In weaker performances, there were quite a few cases of candidates offering pre-learned answers that lacked relevance.

Not all candidates were able to express themselves in Standard Hindi.

Comments on specific questions

Part 1

Question 1

- (k) There were a few strong answers, but the majority of the candidates who attempted this question did not analyse Kaushalya's mental state or offer any interpretation of the verses.
- (kh) Performance on this question was generally weak. Most answers did not refer to 'nirgun sadhna'. Only a very small minority of candidates produced examples from the text to support their answers.

Question 2

- (k) This question was sometimes answered well. Most candidates were able to give the gist of the poem. In many cases, however, certain lines did not seem to have been understood well by candidates. Very few candidates made a satisfactory comment on the 'भाषा एवं भाव सौदर्य'.
- (kh) Performance on this question was generally satisfactory. Some found it difficult to interpret and develop Pant's and Mahadevi's conceptualisation of "भाषा एवं भाव सौदर्य".

Question 3

- (k) This was a popular question and the context was usually identified correctly by candidates. However, only a minority offered a complete interpretation.

- (kh) Many candidates attempted this question. Answers were not always clear regarding each of the periods. Sometimes the answers showed some confusion. Very few candidates produced any examples in support of their answers.

Question 4

- (k) This question proved to be very popular with candidates. In general, performance was reasonably good. Some candidates gave very passionate descriptions of the ‘मूल समस्या’. Only a few candidates showed understanding and appreciation of how to explain ‘कथा वस्तु’.
- (kh) This was another popular question. Most candidates attempted it well and wrote passionately about the character of Savitri.

Questions 5(k) and (kh)

These questions were attempted by many candidates. In most cases, candidates seemed to find the questions straightforward and answered with passion. However, very few of those who attempted (k) gave a comment on the appropriateness of the title of the story.

Questions 6(k) and (kh)

Very few candidates attempted these questions. In general, those who did produced interesting answers. An area of weakness in answers to 6(kh) was that most candidates did not fully comment on the conflict in the mind of the hero.

Prose

Key messages

In order to do well in this examination, candidates should:

- check sentences carefully to ensure that they are grammatically correct, with particular attention to the accurate use of verb forms and gender agreements
- use correct syntax
- check spellings carefully.

General comments

In general, candidates performed well. The majority of candidates attempted to translate the whole passage. There were some very good performances in which candidates translated the passage with ease and confidence.

General areas for improvement included spelling, syntax and grammar.

Candidates should be reminded to write in an appropriate register and to avoid colloquialisms that, although understandable in an informal spoken context, are not correct in the context of standard written Hindi.

Comments on specific aspects of the translation

Syntax

- In a number of translations, the following phrases were used by candidates as complete sentences:
साइकिल से दफ्तर जाती। अच्छी सेहत को बरकरार रखना।

Case (कारक दोष)

- For 'daily routine' the expected answer was दिनचर्या। रोज की चर्या is a good substitute but a few candidates wrote रोज को चर्चा or रोज को चर्या।
- अच्छा सेहत or अच्छी स्वास्थ्य are examples of inappropriate कारक
- मेरी मुख्य काम was often given instead of मेरा मुख्य काम (the text in English is "My main role is ---").

Singular/plural

- The following was often seen: ग्राहक instead of ग्राहकों for clients.

Vocabulary

- For '---- long lunch', the expected translation was 'देर तक दोपहर का खाना खाता था।' This was literally translated by a number of candidates as लम्बी नाश्ता/भोजन करता था। The sentence was not translated in context.

- For 'supermarket', transliteration as सुपरमार्केट was accepted. For 'swimming pool', स्विमिंग पूल was accepted.
- For 'regular exercise', regular was generally translated as रेगुलर, not नियमित or any other Hindi word.
- Kind was usually translated as सुशील or अच्छी instead of दयालु (English text: "She is calm and kind").
- 'Politely' was translated as अच्छे से instead of नम्रतापूर्वक.
- 'Classical music' was translated by a large proportion of candidates as भारतीय संगीत or सुरीली संगीत और पुराने गाने.

Colloquialisms

Examples included: अच्छे से, जिसने यह काम सिखाई, जल्दी से नाश्ता की

Spelling

Candidates' translations very often included several spelling errors.

The following are examples of errors frequently seen: कोशीश, महसुस, उठगी, नाशता, नासता, हुँ (instead of हूँ), बड़कराड़ (for maintain), शिक्कायद (for complaints).
