	AL			✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓

I will be teaching this subject in September 2016 which syllabus should I be teaching from?

If your candidates are taking the linear route for A Level examination in 2018, then they would take both AS & A Level 9990 in 2018. (A staged route for 9990 will not be available in 2018.)

I have candidates who will be taking the AS Level examination in 2017 which syllabus should they be entered for?

Candidates taking the AS Level examination in 2017 should take 9698. (9990 is available for examination from 2018, not before.)

If these candidates then go on to take the A Level in 2018 which syllabus should they be entered for?

Candidates taking the A Level examination in 2018 after having taken the AS Level examination in 2017 should take 9698.

Can candidates take the AS Level in one syllabus in 2017 and the A Level in 2018 in the new syllabus?

No, candidates may not do this. They must complete both the AS and A Level components from the same syllabus, either 9698 or 9990.

If any of my candidates need to resit in 2018 which syllabus should they be entered for?

Candidates who are resitting in 2018 should resit under the same syllabus code.

If any of my candidates need to resit in 2019 which syllabus should they be entered for?

Candidates who resit in 2019 will need to take 9990, not 9698.

9698 is available for examination up to and including 2018, but not thereafter. Therefore if you wish your candidates to have the opportunity of a resit in 2019, then they must be entered for 9990.
