READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

If you have been given an Answer Booklet, follow the instructions on the front cover of the Booklet.

Write your Centre number, candidate number and name on all the work you hand in.

Write in dark blue or black pen.

Do not use staples, paper clips, highlighters, glue or correction fluid.

Answer two questions.

You are reminded of the need for good English and clear presentation in your answers.

At the end of the examination, fasten all your work securely together.

All questions in this paper carry 25 marks.

The specimen paper is for general illustrative purposes. Please see the syllabus for the relevant year of the examination for details of the set texts.

This document consists of 12 printed pages and 2 blank pages.

FLEUR ADCOCK: Collected Poems

- 1 Either (a) By what means and with what effects does Adcock present the idea of home? You should make detailed reference to three poems.
- Or (b) Write a critical appreciation of the following poem, showing how far it is characteristic of Adcock's methods and concerns.

A Way Out

The other option's to become a bird.
 That's kindly done, to guess from how they sing, decently independent of the word
 as we are not; and how they use the air to sail as we might soaring on a swing 5 higher and higher; but the rope's not there,

it's free fall upward, out into the sky;
 or if the arc veer downward, then it's planned:
 a bird can loiter, skimming just as high as lets him supervise the hazel copse, 10
 the turnip field, the orchard, and then land on just the twig he's chosen. Down he drops to feed, if so it be: a pretty killer,

 a keen-eyed stomach weighted like a dart.
 He feels no pity for the caterpillar, 15
 that moistly munching hoop of innocent green.
 It is such tender lapses twist the heart.
 A bird's heart is a tight little red bean, untwistable. His beak is made of bone, his feet apparently of stainless wire; 20

 his coat's impermeable; his nest's his own.
 The clogging multiplicity of things amongst which other creatures, battling, tire can be evaded by a pair of wings.

The point is, most of it occurs below, 25
 earthed at the levels of the grovelling wood and gritty buildings. Up's the way to go.
 If it's escapist, if it's like a dream
 the dream's prolonged until it ends for good.
 I see no disadvantage in the scheme. 30

W.H. AUDEN: Selected Poems

- 2 Either (a) By what means and with what effects does Auden focus on the impact of a particular moment? You should make detailed reference to three poems from this selection.
- Or (b) Focusing on Auden's poetic methods and effects, write a critical appreciation of the following poem.

The Unknown Citizen
To JS/07/M/378
This Marble Monument is Erected by the State

He was found by the Bureau of Statistics to be
 One against whom there was no official complaint,
 And all the reports on his conduct agree
 That, in the modern sense of an old-fashioned word, he was a saint, 5

For in everything he did he served the Greater Community.
 Except for the War till the day he retired
 He worked in a factory and never got fired,
 But satisfied his employers, Fudge Motors Inc.
 Yet he wasn't a scab or odd in his views, 10
 For his Union reports that he paid his dues,
 (Our report on his Union shows it was sound)
 And our Social Psychology workers found
 That he was popular with his mates and liked a drink.
 The Press are convinced that he bought a paper every day 15
 And that his reactions to advertisements were normal in every way.

Policies taken out in his name prove that he was fully insured,
 And his Health-card shows he was once in hospital but left it cured. 20

Both Producers Research and High-Grade Living declare
 He was fully sensible to the advantages of the Installment Plan
 And had everything necessary to the Modern Man,
 A gramophone, a radio, a car and a frigidaire.
 Our researchers into Public Opinion are content 25
 That he held the proper opinions for the time of year;
 When there was peace, he was for peace; when there was war, he went.

He was married and added five children to the population,
 Which our Eugenist says was the right number for a parent of 30
his generation,

And our teachers report that he never interfered with their education.

Was he free? Was he happy? The question is absurd:
 Had anything been wrong, we should certainly have heard. 35

JANET FRAME: Towards Another Summer

3 Either (a) 'Nothing was simple, known, safe, believed, identified.'

By what means and with what effects does Frame present insecurity in the novel?

Or (b) Discuss the effects of the writing in the following passage, showing in what ways it is characteristic of Frame's methods and concerns.

She had almost reached the street when a woman emerged from one of the terraced houses facing the park. Her dress was patched in black and white, outlined sharply against the grey day. To Grace's astonishment the woman suddenly flapped her arms then opening her mouth she screeched three times and then was silent. Then she began screeching again. Grace stared at her black and white patched dress, listened to the screeching, and thought, —She's a magpie, she's not a woman, she's a bird. As she watched the woman more closely she saw the final change taking place in her – she had surprised her in private metamorphosis – she saw the arms mould themselves to wings, the black and white patched dress change to feathers about her body, her nose extend sharply to form a beak. There was no need for her voice to change. She began screeching once more; she was calling someone, her children. She flapped her wings belligerently as Grace passed her, she turned her bright fierce eyes towards her, then she dropped one wing limply at her side and fluttering the other as if clearing an obstacle from the air, she resumed her screeching. 5

No, it's not the call of the magpie, Grace considered. Perhaps she is a marsh bird; a plover, peewit; why should I see her here, now? Does she know that I too have changed to a bird? That it is time for me to fly towards another summer? 10

—See anything interesting on your walk?

—I was walking in the park when I saw a woman changed to a bird –

Why should she not speak the truth at least once in her life? The need to tell Philip and Anne, to stand in the big untidy kitchen and say, aloud, I saw a woman change to a bird, was so desperate that Grace did not know how she would be able to prevent herself from telling. She knew there would be embarrassing consequences. Hasty Reassurances. The subject switched to one more harmless. Her limited social experience made her feel certain of the response to her news; she did not question the accuracy of her forecast, although she knew she was being unfair to Philip and Anne. Perhaps for the first time in her life she was among people whose imagination was not housed in a small dark room with no windows, whose understanding and sympathy were liberal, adventurous. 15

Why not tell them, why not explain? she said to herself. I don't wish to inhabit the human world under false pretences. I'm relieved to have discovered my identity after being so confused about it for so many years. Why should people be afraid if I confide in them? Yet people will always be afraid and jealous of those who finally establish their identity; it leads them to consider their own, to seclude it, cosset it, for fear it may be borrowed or interfered with, and when they are in the act of protecting it they suffer the shock of realising that their identity is nothing, it is something they dreamed and never knew; and then begins the painstaking search – what shall they choose – beast? another human being? insect? bird? 20

If I confide that I have become a bird, others may want to change in the same way; or the shock may be so great that even Philip and Anne, who have qualities of mind to deal with unexpected situations, may not be able to adapt themselves in time, to accept the truth of my identity. The strain of constant adaptation to so many fearful events and discoveries is already too much to bear with sanity; one has to keep pretending to slip successfully into the new mould; a time will come when the tailored and camouflaged mind breaks beneath the burden; the stick insect in our brains no longer cares to resemble a twig on the same habitual human tree in the mere hope that it may survive extinction. 25

BRIAN FRIEL: Translations

4 Either (a) Discuss the significance of renaming in the play, and with reference to particular scenes, show how Friel uses the idea to create a variety of dramatic effects.

Or (b) Comment on the language and action in the following scene, to show how Friel shapes an audience's response to the characters.

- Maire:* Shhh. (She holds her hand up for silence – she is trying to remember her one line of English. Now she remembers it and she delivers the line as if English were her language – easily, fluidly, conversationally.) George, in Norfolk we besport ourselves around the maypole.
- Yolland:* Good God, do you? That's where my mother comes from – Norfolk. 5 Norwich actually. Not exactly Norwich town but a small village called Little Walsingham close beside it. But in our own village of Winfarthing we have a maypole too and every year on the first of May –
- He stops abruptly, only now realising. He stares at her. She in turn misunderstands his excitement.* 10
- Maire:* (to herself) Mother of God, my Aunt Mary wouldn't have taught me something dirty, would she?
- Pause.*
- Yolland extends his hand to Maire. She turns away from him and moves slowly across the stage.* 15
- Yolland:* Maire.
- She still moves away.*
- Maire Chatach.
- She still moves away.*
- Bun na hAbhann? (He says the name softly, almost privately, very tentatively, as if he were searching for a sound she might respond to. He tries again.) Druim Dubh? 20
- Maire stops. She is listening. Yolland is encouraged.*
- Poll na gCaorach. Lis Maol.
- Maire turns towards him.* 25
- Lis na nGall.
- Maire:* Lis na nGradh.
- They are now facing each other and begin moving – almost imperceptibly – towards one another.*
- Carraig an Phoill. 30
- Yolland:* Carraig na Ri. Loch na nEan.
- Maire:* Loch an Iubhair. Machaire Buidhe.
- Yolland:* Machaire Mor. Cnoc na Mona.
- Maire:* Cnoc na nGabhar.
- Yolland:* Mullach. 35
- Maire:* Port.
- Yolland:* Tor.
- Maire:* Lag.
- She holds out her hands to Yolland. He takes them. Each now speaks almost to himself/herself.* 40

- Yolland:* I wish to God you could understand me.
- Maire:* Soft hands; a gentleman's hands.
- Yolland:* Because if you could understand me I could tell you how I spend my days either thinking of you or gazing up at your house in the hope that you'll appear even for a second. 45
- Maire:* Every evening you walk by yourself along the Tra Bhan and every morning you wash yourself in front of your tent.
- Yolland:* I would tell you how beautiful you are, curly-headed Maire. I would so like to tell you how beautiful you are.
- Maire:* Your arms are long and thin and the skin on your shoulders is very white. 50
- Yolland:* I would tell you ...
- Maire:* Don't stop – I know what you're saying.
- Yolland:* I would tell you how I want to be here – to live here – always – with you – always, always.
- Maire:* 'Always'? What is that word – 'always'? 55
- Yolland:* Yes-yes; always.
- Maire:* You're trembling.
- Yolland:* Yes, I'm trembling because of you.
- Maire:* I'm trembling, too. (She holds his face in her hand.)
- Yolland:* I've made up my mind ... 60
- Maire:* Shhhh.
- Yolland:* I'm not going to leave here ...
- Maire:* Shhh – listen to me. I want you, too, soldier.
- Yolland:* Don't stop – I know what you're saying.
- Maire:* I want to live with you – anywhere – anywhere at all – always – always. 65
- Yolland:* 'Always'? What is that word – 'always'?
- Maire:* Take me away with you, George.
- Pause.*
- Suddenly they kiss.*
- Sarah enters. She sees them. She stands shocked, staring at them. Her mouth works. Then almost to herself.* 70
- Sarah:* Manus ... Manus!
- Sarah runs off.*
- Music to crescendo.*

Act 2, Scene 2

ARUNDHATI ROY: The God of Small Things

- 5 Either (a) By what means and with what effects does Roy present a child's view of the world?
- Or (b) Discuss the effects of the writing in the following passage, paying close attention to the way Roy presents character and suggests the wider concerns of the novel.

It was his smile that reminded Ammu of Velutha as a little boy.

WOLE SOYINKA: The Trials of Brother Jero and Jero's Metamorphosis

6 Either (a) 'The comedy in the plays is visual, verbal, and used to expose human weakness.'

With reference to particular scenes, discuss the plays in the light of this comment.

Or (b) Discuss the dramatic effects of the writing in the following extract, considering the ways Soyinka shapes an audience's response to the characters and concerns of the play.

- Executive:* Is this the woman?
- Clerk:* Yes, sir. Miss Denton, this is the Chief Executive Officer of the Tourist Board of the City Council. Miss Denton, sir.
- Executive:* Miss Denton ...
- Rebecca:* My name is Rebecca. 5
- Executive:* I do not believe, young lady, that we are on Christian name terms.
- Rebecca:* I do not believe that you are on Christian terms at all, sir. Your soul is in danger.
- Executive [splutters badly and explodes.]:* My religious state is no concern of yours, young woman. 10
- Rebecca:* But it is, sir, it is. I am my brother's keeper. The state of your soul distresses me, sir.
- Clerk:* That's how it started, sir. That's how it started.
- Executive:* That is how what started?
- Clerk:* That was how the prophet got her. He wasn't even addressing her at all but the C.E.O. who came to serve him notice. He kept preaching at him all the time but she was the one who got the message. Christ, sir, you should have seen her convulsions! 15
- Executive:* Why the hell did he bring her in the first place?
- Rebecca:* Hell is true sir. I was living in hell but did not know it until Brother Jero pointed the path of God to me. 20
- Executive:* I was not addressing you, woman.
- Clerk:* She was his private secretary ...
- Executive:* I know she was his private secretary, damn you ...
- Rebecca:* He will not be damned sir, the Lord is merciful. ... 25
- Executive:* Can't anyone shut up this religious maniac? I asked, why bring her along? Do you see me here with my private secretary?
- Rebecca:* I shall answer that question. When you are saved, you are no longer afraid to tell the truth. My boss asked me to come with him to take notes, but in my heart I knew that he was planning to seduce me. 30
- Executive:* What! You dare slander a senior government official of my department in my presence? I shall order an investigation and have you charged with ...
- Clerk:* Don't, sir. It's the truth. The C.E.O. has had his eye on her a long time. Wouldn't let her alone in the office, making her do overtime even if there was no work to do, just to try and ... 35
- Executive:* That's enough thank you. I don't need the whole picture painted in bold and dirty colours.
- Clerk:* Yes, sir, I mean, no, sir.

- Rebecca:* Do not distress yourself for that poor sinner. I pray for the salvation of his soul every day. 40
- Executive:* And we are praying for you to come to your senses. And for a start just hand me the file you had with you. And be thankful I am not having you charged for keeping an official file after office hours.
- Clerk:* And a confidential file don't forget that, sir. Very confidential. 45
- Executive:* Quite right. The file, young lady. We will overlook the offence since you weren't really in possession of your senses.
- Rebecca:* I was never more clearly within my senses as now.
- Executive:* You call this a sensible action? You, an intelligent young girl, a fully trained Confidential Secretary ... 50
- Clerk:* Eighty words per minute, sir, one hundred and twenty shorthand ...
- Executive:* Did I ask you to supply me statistics?
- Clerk:* Beg pardon, sir. Just saying what a waste it is.
- Executive:* Of course it's a bloody waste. Eighty words per minute and a hundred and twenty shorthand. You had enough will-power to resist the revolting advances of a lecherous Chief Eviction Officer on the rampage, you are trusted sufficiently to be assigned an official duty which is most essential to our national economy and what happens – you permit yourself to be bamboozled by a fake prophet, a transparent charlatan ... 55
- Rebecca [pitying.]:* It is the devil which speaks in you sir, it's the devil which makes you call Prophet Jeroboam all those bad names. 60
- Executive:* He deserves more than a bad name. He deserves a bad end and he will come to it yet.
- Rebecca:* Fight the devil in you, sir, let us help you fight and conquer him. 65
- Executive:* Can't you see Jeroboam is the devil, damn you? All the prophets on this beach are devils. ...
- Rebecca:* The devil is in you, sir, I can see him.
- Executive:* They have to be evicted. They stand in the way of progress. They clutter up the beach and prevent decent men from coming here and paying to enjoy themselves. They are holding up a big tourist business. You know yourself how the land value has doubled since we started public executions on this beach. 70
- Rebecca:* Shameless sinners who acquire wealth from the misfortunes of others? Will you make money off sin and iniquity? Oh sir, you must let Brother Jero talk to you about the evil in your plans. 75

Jero's Metamorphosis, Scene 1

VIRGINIA WOOLF: To the Lighthouse

- 7 Either (a) By what means and with what effects does Woolf portray the Ramsays' marriage?
- Or (b) Write a critical appreciation of the following passage, to show how its narrative methods and concerns are characteristic of the novel as a whole.

She seemed to have shrivelled slightly, he thought. She looked a little skimpy, wispy; but not unattractive. He liked her. There had been some talk of her marrying William Bankes once, but nothing had come of it. His wife had been fond of her. He had been a little out of temper too at breakfast. And then, and then – this was one of those moments when an enormous need urged him, without being conscious what it was, to approach any woman, to force them, he did not care how, his need was so great, to give him what he wanted: sympathy. 5

Was anybody looking after her? he said. Had she everything she wanted?

'Oh, thanks, everything,' said Lily Briscoe nervously. No; she could not do it. She ought to have floated off instantly upon some wave of sympathetic expansion: the pressure on her was tremendous. But she remained stuck. There was an awful pause. They both looked at the sea. Why, thought Mr Ramsay, should she look at the sea when I am here? She hoped it would be calm enough for them to land at the Lighthouse, she said. The Lighthouse! The Lighthouse! What's that got to do with it? he thought impatiently. Instantly, with the force of some primeval gust (for really he could not restrain himself any longer), there issued from him such a groan that any other woman in the whole world would have done something, said something – all except myself, thought Lily, girding at herself bitterly, who am not a woman, but a peevish, ill-tempered, dried-up old maid presumably. 10 15

Mr Ramsay sighed to the full. He waited. Was she not going to say anything? Did she not see what he wanted from her? Then he said he had a particular reason for wanting to go to the Lighthouse. His wife used to send the men things. There was a poor boy with a tuberculous hip, the lightkeeper's son. He sighed profoundly. He sighed significantly. All Lily wished was that this enormous flood of grief, this insatiable hunger for sympathy, this demand that she should surrender herself up to him entirely, and even so he had sorrows enough to keep her supplied for ever, should leave her, should be diverted (she kept looking at the house, hoping for an interruption) before it swept her down in its flow. 20 25

'Such expeditions,' said Mr Ramsay, scraping the ground with his toe, 'are very painful.' Still Lily said nothing. (She is a stock, she is a stone, he said to himself.) 'They are very exhausting,' he said, looking, with a sickly look that nauseated her (he was acting, she felt, this great man was dramatising himself), at his beautiful hands. It was horrible, it was indecent. Would they never come, she asked, for she could not sustain this enormous weight of sorrow, support these heavy draperies of grief (he had assumed a pose of extreme decrepitude; he even tottered a little as he stood there) a moment longer. 30 35

Still she could say nothing; the whole horizon seemed swept bare of objects to talk about; could only feel, amazedly, as Mr Ramsay stood there, how his gaze seemed to fall dolefully over the sunny grass and discolour it, and cast over the rubicund, drowsy, entirely contented figure of Mr Carmichael, reading a French novel on a deckchair, a veil of crape, as if such an existence, flaunting its prosperity in a world of woe, were enough to provoke the most dismal thoughts of all. Look at him, he seemed to be saying; look at me; and indeed, all the time he was feeling, Think of me, think of me. 40
